A Selective Bibliography of Works Related to the Teaching of Slavic Languages and Literatures in the United States and Canada, 1942–1967

Sigmund S. Birkenmayer

The following bibliography lists articles, studies, research reports, monographs, books, and bibliographical and reference sources which are related to the teaching of Russian and other Slavic languages (and literatures) in this country and Canada since World War II.

This bibliography may be considered a supplement to the ACTFL Bibliography, an annual listing which began in Foreign Language Annals 1,i(October 1967). It follows, in the main, the guidelines established by the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages, the only exception being that in the "Materials" section it includes also textbocks, grammars, and readers. The style of entries is that of the new Style Sheet prepared by Harrison T. Meserole for the MLA International Bibliography. Most items listed are classified by Section (e.g., Linguistics, Psychology, Curriculum, Methods), Level (e.g., Elementary, Secondary, Undergraduate, Graduate), and Language (e.g., Czech, Polish, Russian, Ukrainian). Items in the last three sections ("Bibliography," "Dictionaries," and "Reference Works") are usually not classified by level but by language (or country, as is the case with encyclopedias and other reference works).

Most of the items seen and evaluated by me (and such items constitute the bulk of this bibliography) have been annotated, so as to give the users of the bibliography brief but pertinent information on the content of a book or an article. Such annotations are given in brackets following an item.

In accordance with the principles of the ACTFL Bibliography, each item is entered only once, in the place where I believe it will attract the largest number of users. The attention of others is called to it by cross-references. Full coverage of any level or language is therefore contingent upon the use of cross-references (found after the words, See also at the end of each subsection). A number in brackets following a title refers to a book item (a Festschrift or other analyzed collection) where complete data concerning the book may be found.

Users of the bibliography may find that some studies which they think important have been omitted from my selection; they may also find that some studies which they consider unimportant have been included. In either case, I would be grateful for suggestions concerning additions or deletions which can be considered for a later revision.

I wish to express my thanks to the following persons, who in various ways assisted me in producing this bibliography: Thomas F. Magner, Associate Dean for Research in The College of the Liberal Arts at The Pennsylvania State University; Arthur P. Coleman, retired President of Alliance College, Pennsylvania; and Alfred Senn, Professor of Germanic and Balto-Slavic Philology at the University of Pennsylvania.

The preparation of this bibliography was partially financed by a grant from the Central
